Cambridge

Students will live and study law and leadership at Emmanuel College, Cambridge. Emmanuel College is one of Cambridge University's more than thirty constituent colleges, and it is located in the Cambridge city centre. Emmanuel College was founded in 1584, and early graduates were among those who settled New England in the first half of the 17th century, not least of whom was John Harvard, namesake and first benefactor of Harvard University. This program is in collaboration with the University of Richmond Law School, which has conducted a summer law program in England for more than thirty years.

Program

Students will participate in classes, lectures and out-of-town trips to examine law and leadership in an international context and to experience the rich intellectual and cultural history of England. This program is open to all students, but preference will be given to rising and graduating seniors of the University of Richmond.

Course Information

Students will register for between 4 and 6 credit hours. Courses generally meet Monday through Thursday, leaving students free to travel on weekends. Possible course topics include:

- Law of the EU
- Comparative Public Law
- International Law
